Emerald Data Networks recognized by Better Business Bureau Company Receives Awards for Service and Ethics

ATLANTA, April 22, 2008 – Emerald Data Networks, Inc. received three awards from the Atlanta Better Business Bureau serving Atlanta, Athens and Northeast Georgia last week. The Atlanta-based company won 2008 Torch Awards for Community Service and Customer Service and was named runner-up for Marketplace Ethics, an award it won in 2007. Emerald was the only company to receive awards in all three categories.

“We’re honored to be recognized in all three categories,” said Darrell Rodgers, president of Emerald Data Networks. “Emerald Data Networks is a team of dedicated and inspired individuals. Our customers range from multi-billion dollar companies to small businesses. We don’t make any distinctions. They all rely on us for honesty, integrity and technical expertise.”

Emerald earned the Torch Award for Community Service based on its support of several educational and community service organizations that directly influence the lives of children. The Torch Award for Customer Service was awarded to Emerald due to the company’s commitment to provide every customer with value and its refusal to leave any customer dissatisfied. For the second year in a row, Emerald was recognized for Marketplace Ethics. The company earned this distinction by faithfully adhering to the corporate mandate of “do what’s right for the customer.”

In awarding three Torch Awards to Emerald Data Networks, the Atlanta Better Business Bureau serving Atlanta, Athens and Northeast Georgia recognizes the company’s dedication to service and ethical business practices.
